

> FINANCING THE SEARCH: Then and now

The HIV vaccine field has made tremendous progress in the past 20 years, with discoveries and approaches that benefit a wide range of research fields and public health issues. Funding, while substantial, has been relatively constant for the past 10 years. Maintaining this minimum level is essential to keeping up the momentum. For up-to-date information on funding across HIV prevention research, visit: www.hivresourcetracking.org.