

Breaking the Cycle of Heterosexual Transmission

Researchers in South Africa used genetic analysis of HIV to understand the cycle of transmission of HIV in one part of the country. Men and women in each of these age groups have distinct prevention needs noted below, in addition to the standard prevention package including female and male condoms and behavior change.

